

Електронно издание на Супрасълския сборник / Codex Suprasliensis -1

Codex Suprasliensis (called also the Retkov Miscellany), a Cyrillic manuscript copied at the end of the tenth or beginning of the eleventh century, is the largest extant Old Church Slavonic manuscript from the Preslav literary school, First Bulgarian kingdom. It is one of the earliest testimonials to the reception of Orthodox Christianity among the Slavs. Handwritten well over 1000 years ago, the manuscript contains 24 vitae of Christian saints for the month of March and 23 homilies for triodion cycle of the church year. In content it is a lectionary menaeum (or panegyric), combined with homilies from the movable Easter cycle, most of which were written by or are attributed to John Chrysostom.
